BAR MEMBER IN SUIT CLAIMS POLES CUT PROPERTY VALUE

Edgar T. Snipes and Wife Bring Suit Against Bell Telephone Company

WITNESSES TESTIFY

Jury Members Visit The Premises Located in Falls Township

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 16.—Claiming that one of their properties along the Lincoln Highway near Fallsington has been depreciated in value from $38,650 to $19,650, a well known member of the Bucks County Bar, Edgar T. Snipes and his wife, Jane Moon Snipes, prominent Falls Township residents, are suing the Bell Telephone Company. Judge Calvin S. Boyer is presiding at the trial.

The first day of civil court was consumed with the jury trekking to the Falls township premises and the trial getting underway on Tuesday afternoon.

Edgar T. Snipes, 60, who said he is an attorney and farmer, testified that the Bell Telephone Company erected a line of ten telephone poles for about one-half mile on his property January 7, 1938.

Mr. Snipes listed a gas station, restaurant, fruit stand and storage house as some of the business establishments operating on the two tracts of 36 acres before the poles and cable were erected.

"A fair market value of the two tracts of 36 acres before the poles and cable were erected was $38,650," said Mr. Snipes. "After the poles and wire were strung up it was worth only about $19,650."

Reasons for the depreciation, Mr. Snipes stated, were:

LATEST NEWS . . .

Received from International News Service Over Special Teletype News Wire.

Grave Concern Over Japanese Cabinet Resignation

Washington, Oct. 16.—Grave concern was felt in official quarters in Washington today over the news that the Japanese cabinet of Prince Konoye has resigned.

The Japanese cabinet's fall came quickly in the wake of disclosure in Washington that this government had virtually rejected Japan's terms for an understanding with this country.

Move Russian Governmental Offices

New York, Oct. 16.—The Dutch radio reported today that the Russian governmental offices are being moved from Moscow to Kazan, 500 miles east of Moscow.

Claim British "Sub" is Sunk

Rome, Oct. 16.—Sinking of a British submarine in the Mediterranean was announced by the Fascist high command today.

"Invading Planes" Are "Downed" in Maneuvers

Philadelphia, Oct. 16.—Swarming out of the northeast, nearly 50 Army bombers roared over Philadelphia today in the final exercises of the week-long maneuvers which have been testing the defenses of industrial areas along the eastern seaboard. But alert pursuit planes intercepted the enemy and theoretically cut them down before they could inflict any damage on the city.

Soviets Call On Men In Rear For Defense

Moscow, Oct. 16.—Frankly admitting that German mechanized units have smashed through Moscow's vital defenses, Soviet authorities today called upon men and machines "in the rear" to rise in defense of the Soviet Union.

An official broadcast foreshadowed the defeat or evacuation of Moscow, although neither eventuality is anticipated before a terrific battle, street by street and house by house, has taken place.

Calling upon industrial centers "in the rear" for increased effort, the broadcaster said:

"Even though the enemy has created a serious threat to Moscow, he is no nearer victory. Victory is not his and never will be."

At the same time it was admitted that Nazi forces driving forward through an opening punched in the Russian lines "seriously threatened" Moscow.

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

With veterans and auxiliary members from more than 45 posts in attendance, representing Bucks, Berks, Delaware, Chester, Montgomery and Philadelphia counties, Doylestown Post, No. 175, Veterans of Foreign Wars was host on Sunday at the first district meeting of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

In addition to most officers of the veterans' posts and auxiliary units in attendance were Department officials from Harrisburg and Altoona who were guests at the convention in Doylestown.

About 150 veterans attended the sessions held in the V. of F. W. Home on South Clinton street and about the same number of women attended the session held in the Moose Home on East State street.

The auxiliary members expressed satisfaction with the ideal auditorium facilities at the Moose Home. In charge of the women's session was Mrs. McIlvoyle, of Chester, who stressed the importance of making plans for the carrying of hospital work among the World War veterans.

Post Commander of the local post, Robert G. Sergeant, welcomed the veterans, and David W. Davis, of Glen-dale, District Commander of this eastern district, presided.

Announcement has been made by Dr. H. W. Hassell, Norristown, medical director of Bucks and Montgomery counties, of two more cases of infantile paralysis, one of them in Bucks county.

The Bucks county victim is Beatrice Snyder, aged 3, daughter of Leroy Snyder, who resides in the California section of Quakertown. The child, under the care of a Quakertown physician, is ill at her home. Whether the victim is in a serious condition could not be learned on Tuesday morning.

The victim in Montgomery county is John Roberts, 16, of Ardmore. He was said to have been stricken 10 days after his brother, Frederick, 14, was admitted to the Bryn Mawr Hospital with the same disease. John also has been admitted to the hospital in Bryn Mawr.

Bucks county so far this season has had seven cases of polio and Montgomery has had seventeen.

Because an alert County seat resident managed to get the license number of the car, Christian Matthy, 60, Towanda, R. D. 4, who is charged with striking the car of A. Newlin Hellyer, and falling to stop, was apprehended by Pennsylvania Motor Police in Easton.

Chief Felix R. Gowan, of Doylestown, who said the motorists' car collided with the Hellyer car, which was parked in front of the Hellyer residence, Doylestown, praised the efforts of the Doylestown resident who managed to obtain the license number of the car which kept on going.

When returned to Doylestown by a Pennsylvania Motor Policeman from the Easton sub-station, the motorist told Chief Gowan and Officer C. Clifford Beck, who arrested him, that he didn't know he struck a car while passing through town.

He was released after furnishing bail.

High praise was received by the Bucks County Defense Council from Colonel Clifton Lisle, Acting Director of Civilian Defense, 3rd Civilian Defense Area.

In his letter Colonel Lisle said: "I wish to thank you for your most kindly hospitality on Friday night and to express my admiration for the outstanding work performed in Doylestown, New Britain, Chalfont areas by the organized volunteers during the air raid precaution black-out."

"Will you not pass on to every person concerned my highest commendation? I feel that the enthusiasm and esprit shown by all, the perfect timing and co-operation, the willingness of everybody to play his part, has been unequalled within my experience."

"I think that your entire organization is to be congratulated and should be informed that I propose to use the Bucks county plan as a model throughout the area."

Highlights included an address by "Dave" Landreth, his subject being "Baseball"; and a motion picture entitled "Winning Baseball," the latter being produced by the National League.

One point brought out by Mr. Landreth was the difference between "dumb plays" and errors. What helped decide the issue in the last World Series were errors and "bad breaks," not "dumb plays," stated Mr. Landreth. Among the points the local baseball

EMERGENCY POLICE SYSTEM TO BE GIVEN TEST HERE SUNDAY NIGHT SO AS TO DETERMINE ITS EFFICIENCY

Traffic Will Be Halted and Signal To Be Sounded, But Lights Will Not Be Extinguished—Public Utilities Are To Be Guarded

Bristol residents are going to experience a paradoxical "black-out," Sunday evening, if plans in process of formation are carried to an ultimate conclusion by the Home Defense organization of Bristol. All of the plans and details that are put in effect for a black-out will be carried out here with the exception of extinguishing the lights. In other words Bristol's "black-out" will be brilliantly illuminated.

The test or drill is being held so as to determine the efficiency of the plans and to discover any flaws which might exist in their practical workings.

According to Anthony Russo, area chief, and Linford J. Jones, district chief, the test or drill will be staged here Sunday evening beginning at nine o'clock. It will continue for approximately 45 minutes, during which time every recruit of the Bristol Emergency Police is expected to be on duty at his assigned post, and perform the duties assigned to him. The area chief and the district chief will tour the borough and check up on those assigned to various duties. Signals will be sounded just the same as they are during a black-out, but the residents here must keep in mind that the lights will not be extinguished. After considering the matter thoroughly, it was decided not to stage a complete black-out in Bristol. The reasons, the officials say, are sound, but are not announced at this time. Whether or not Bristol will have an actual black-out later is something yet to be determined.

Detailed instructions for the test Sunday night are out-lined as follows:

9.00 P. M.—All recruits and district chiefs of Bristol Borough Emergency Police are to be at their posts, in accordance with the instructions which they have previously received.

9.20 P. M.—All vehicular traffic will be prohibited from entering the borough by Pennsylvania Motor Police, such traffic to be halted on the right-hand side of the highways in the direction in which they are travelling. Such vehicles wherever possible are to park with as much of the vehicle off of the main highway as possible, so as to afford an open center lane for emergency traffic if such cases should arise. All Emergency Police and District Chiefs will halt all traffic going across Bristol—from the Delaware River in the direction of the P. R. R., and vice versa.

9.25 P. M.—The siren on the Bristol municipal building, and the whistles at the plants of William H. Grundy & Co., and Manhattan Soap Co., will sound a long blast, which will be the signal that all traffic within Bristol borough must come to a standstill on the right-hand side of the road in the direction in which they are travelling.

9.40 P. M.—The "all-clear" signal will be sounded at which time all traffic will be released.

During the period from 9.00 to 9.45, area chiefs and district chiefs of the Bristol borough emergency police will tour the borough, collecting from each man on duty his identification card. These later will be used as a means of checking up on the presence of the men at their respective posts. Each man will be identified by wearing an over-seas cap of dark gray, and an emergency police button, which are now being distributed.

In addition to being stationed at all street intersections, emergency police will also guard all public utilities, such as the Bell Telephone Company building, Bristol Consolidated Fire Station, the two water storage tanks, and the water pumping station, and sewer plant.

All Emergency Police are to remain at posts after the "All-Clear" signal is given and aid in the handling of traffic and are not to leave their posts until they have been checked by the area chiefs.

As the Emergency Police are visited by the Area Chiefs they are to give their number and the number of the ward in which they are located. As an example—if an Emergency Police has badge number 1575 and is on duty in the first ward he will call to the area chiefs when his post is visited, "No 1—1575."

A BIG MEAL

This winter the world will witness the greatest borrowing of food it has ever seen. This "backyard fence" deal will be across the Atlantic and principals in the transaction will be the United States and England.

Since last March this country has been sending food to England at an ever-increasing rate which has now reached 200,000 tons a month. Secretary of Agriculture Wickard has asked $1,000,000,000 from Congress to buy food for Britain. He says that this is the absolute minimum and that it must be moved into England by February.

England's home production is declining dangerously. Milk production is down 20 per cent, egg production has declined 70 per cent, the fish-catch is off 75 per cent. Canada, which has helped out with supplies to England, is faltering in its shipments except in wheat.

Could all that the United States is to send to England in food during the next five months be piled on one platter—evaporated milk, cheese, starch, lard, beans, pork, corn and canned tomatoes—the whole of it would loom up like Pike's Peak. A billion dollars will buy a big meal any time anywhere.

ARMY MANEUVERS

The speeches made by Army commanders following the first maneuvers were admirable. The generals not only discussed the technical triumphs and failures of the maneuvers, but by implication reported to the people on the condition of the Army after a year of intensive expansion and training.

All branches of the Army were handicapped in the maneuvers by lack of weapons and to some extent by shortage of transportation. But enough equipment was available to send some units into the maneuvers under war conditions. These units made long, forced marches under difficult conditions. The work of the engineers in providing the means of moving large bodies of troops across rivers and swampy lands was especially commendable. All the Army commanders commented on the stamina of the men. These men are, of course, carefully selected after rigid physical and mental tests. Apparently they are as good as any soldiers in the world.

From these maneuvers the Army is learning many valuable lessons. The commanders had their first experience since the World War, when many of them were junior officers, in working with large bodies of troops. These lessons will be applied both to the organization of the Army and to its equipment. The people have reason to feel that their Army is progressing as satisfactorily as

CHAPTER TWENTY

"On her way back to the office, Marie called to her."

"I thought you might want to congratulate me," she said, and Gale's heart skipped several beats. "I've just been hired by the governor's office, a swell new job."

"Congratulations!" Gale offered her hand and Marie took it with surprise written on her features. "That's dandy!" With that Gale went on back to the office.

Murray's door was still shut. She got up from her chair just as there was a knock. The door opened and the Attorney General with the State Police captain entered.

The taller of the two addressed Gale. "I'm Jake Buckle. I heard you were working down here. I used to know your father years ago. I'm terribly sorry about him, but we all have to go sometime."

He said they had come to see Senator Murray, and introduced his companion as Attorney General John Fritz.

As though he had been listening, Jeffrey came into the outer office. He greeted both men cordially and invited them to step into his inner office. As he followed the men in, he signaled to Gale to listen by the ventilator and take down in shorthand what she heard.

"Well, gentlemen, what can I do for you?" It was Jeff, opening the conversation.

"I asked Captain Buckle to bring me here because there are ugly reports that there is more behind the bill you just had passed in the Senate than appears on the surface," the Attorney General said.

"Just what kind of reports, if you can be more specific?" Jeff asked.

"I can't be more specific than to say that there is a suspicion in some quarters that Senator Smiley's death tied into the progress of your measure."

"It sounds viciously absurd to me!" Murray was indignant. "Why Senator Smiley was highly regarded by me and by other senators."

"Yes, I know," the Attorney General continued, "yet he would undoubtedly have opposed your measure."

"Yes, that is probably true," Jeff admitted. "Smiley had a partisan sense of duty in some cases."

"And he might have defeated it?" Again Jeff agreed. "That is possible. It's difficult to tell, though, for there were only six dissenting votes. His one more would not have been enough."

"But he might have swung others to him and he might have held the bill in committee?"

Murray admitted these possibilities. "But," he said, "I still can't see how all these things should cast a shadow on my measure."

"This is the way it has been explained to me," the Attorney General began. "Smiley was pretty much a cinch to oppose your bill in committee. He had to be taken out of the picture before the bill could be moved. It was arranged and the bill came out of committee. Probably those who arranged it, if it was arranged, had no idea of the consequences of their act."

"It sounds like fiction to me," Murray said. "Things like that don't happen today."

spoke: "Perhaps you're right, Senator. It may all be a coincidence if one could overlook that anonymous wire Smiley received, the wire which told him about his wife."

"I didn't know about that..." Jeff said.

"No one seems to have known about it but the sender."

"We all receive many anonymous letters, phone calls and telegrams each year. Most of them don't amount to anything," Murray said.

Again the Attorney General spoke, admitting that Jeff's words were true, and that he, too, had received his share of such messages.

"Well, Senator," chairs scraped across the floor, indicating to Gale that the interview was ending. "I want to thank you for this little talk. Perhaps you're right. I've read your bill."

Gale heard no more. She was folding her shorthand book, placing it in a drawer and taking the receiver from its cradle. She gave Nan's number and waited for an answer as the door to Senator Murray's office opened and the men came out.

"Nan?" she said. "This is Gale. Fine. I thought I might drop out for a little swim before dinner if it's o.k. All right, yes, goodbye."

The officers had the door open, going out, when Buckle turned to Gale. "I'll see you later," he said, and Gale nodded.

For the moment there appeared to be nothing to worry about. After all, the officers had voiced only a general suspicion of the bill. But an investigation might bring its defeat, and she knew that Colburn would move heaven and earth to prevent that.

She was so deep in thought on the matter that the telephone's jangle startled her.

"Miss Holway, please?" There was a pause and then a man's voice asked: "Gale? This is Mr. Griswold, back home. I have some wonderful news for you."

"What is it?" Gale was glad to hear from her father's former banker.

"Do you remember that large block of gold-mining stock your father had that we thought was worthless?"

"Yes," Gale remembered there was a trunkful of supposedly worthless mine and oil stocks.

"There's a man here now who has offered fifty thousand dollars cash for it. I believe you should accept this offer," Griswold sounded excited.

"Whatever you say, Mr. Griswold," Gale was dazed at the thought of sudden wealth.

"Do you want the money deposited here in your name? It's as safe here as anywhere. The banker was boosting his institution."

"Yes, deposit it there and send me a checkbook. There are some things I could buy."

"Naturally. And I'll keep my eyes open for some good investments for you, too."

Although the background for this story is authentic, the story itself is entirely fictional and the characters are imaginary. Any similarity of names or characters to real persons, living or

"Just a minute, Mr. Griswold," Gale was afraid he had hung up.

"Yes?"

"You might look over some of that other stock, it might have an unsuspected value, too."

"Very well," he said. "Goodbye." Gale hung up and sat staring at the wall. "I'm wealthy," she said to the room at large. "I'm wealthy!" She felt like screaming for joy. "I can go anywhere, do anything I want. Wow!"

She felt she would burst if she didn't tell the good news. So she dialed the governor's office, and then, as the switchboard operator was saying, "Governor's office! Governor's office!" she slowly put the receiver back on the hook. Gale was afraid that Joe Nash might think she was "showing off" with her money.

As suddenly as the joy had come to her, it left. She thought of Nan Parkison, but fifty thousand dollars to Nan Parkison probably wouldn't mean very much.

Then she thought of Elaine, but the latter would spread the news too quickly and she didn't want it to be generally known, at least not just yet. Gale wanted to keep her secret within a select circle of friends, but she slowly realized she didn't have a really close friend in the world!

She knew what she would do. She'd quit her job and travel, go to all the fair places she'd always dreamed of. No, she couldn't do that either, she must finish her job. Daddy would have wanted her to do that, and then after the session ended, she could do as she pleased.

Gale had always wanted an automobile, a long roadster that rumbled deep in its throat as it sped along the highway. Well, why not buy one?

Elaine came bursting through the doorway without stopping to knock, and exclaimed: "Gale, I just saw the Attorney General and that other guy go into the governor's office! What's up?"

Gale thought for a moment, shaking her head at Elaine. "Darned if I know! They were in here a while ago and talked with Senator Murray, but it was just general stuff, nothing of importance. Maybe they just went in to pay their respects."

"Yeah?" Elaine took a chair. "Those guys are ter-r-ri-bly interested in Murray's bill."

"I don't think so. It was just a coincidence. Captain Buckle and the Attorney General are old friends, and they were around the Legislature, so what would be more natural than for them to listen to the debate?"

"But why come in here? They aren't particular friends of Senator Murray's, are they?"

"Captain Buckle knew my father years ago," Gale said.

"Oh, I see," Elaine appeared satisfied, but also disappointed, as a choice morsel of gossip was about to slip from her grasp.

"Incidentally," Gale switched the subject. "I'm going out to Nan Parkison's for a swim later on. You want to go?"

"Sure thing. I'll come down when I get cleaned up. So long," and Elaine was gone.

Note The Improvement At Flower Preserve

for their unceasing efforts and aid in planting, preserving and protecting the wildflower trails.

Mrs. Abram B. Ross, co-executive chairman of the Bowman's Hill State Wildflower Preserve Committee, gave a brief resume of the accomplishments of the committee. She pointed out that the Preserve is now seven years old and during this period 11 trails, totaling about 7,000 feet, have been constructed and ten of these are planted. Labor in these trails included clearing, scraping, cutting of shrubs and trees, weeding, constructing of stone or wooden steps, erecting of signs and markers, etc. Approximately 40,000 plants and 200 trees have been planted with the aid of WPA labor and the maintenance group of the Park Commission. A transfer bed has been made, whereby freshly gathered wild plants may be set out and tended and at the proper time replanted on the trails.

Mrs. Ross stressed the need of individual planting, inasmuch as W. P. A. labor is now unobtainable for this type of work. She suggested that all plantings be submitted to J. W. Adams, field botanist, for his approval, before planting on the trails.

A discussion was held as to the possibility of installing a portable apparatus whereby the trails could be watered during a drought and also to be used for fire protection in the Preserve.

The committee stressed the value to schools, nature clubs and other similar organizations, of the Mary K. Parry educational trail. Markers have been placed on this trail so that the wildflowers indigent to Pennsylvania may be easily identified by their common names. Plants on other trails are identified by catalogue numbers.

Luncheon was served at the Thompson house ravine.

The members of the committee spent a most pleasant afternoon on an inspection tour of the trails, transfer bed, etc. Plantings were checked and notations made as to where new markers were needed.

MARKETING EFFICIENCY HELD VITAL FACTOR IN FOOD DEFENSE PROGRAM

Food distributors must increase their efficiency if the government's "nutrition-for-defense" program is to be a success, L. A. Mullen, of Philadelphia, vice-president in the Atlantic Division of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company declared today.

Announcing the local celebration of the company's 82nd anniversary, he said present world conditions place added importance on A & P's traditional policy of encouraging the consumption of healthful foods by eliminating unnecessary handling costs and narrowing the margin between what the consumer pays and the producer receives.

"With government nutrition experts agreed that vitamins are as vital to America's strength and morale as planes, tanks and guns, all food distributors have a responsibility to move food to consumers with the utmost efficiency," Mr. Mullen said, adding that "our company is proud of its part in meeting that responsibility, not only since the government's nutrition program was started, but in every one of its 82 years of operation."

This efficiency has been maintained since the company was founded in 1859, he said, when George Huntington Hartford took a revolutionary step in purchasing a cargo of tea direct from China and, by eliminating all needless in-between handlings and costs, retailed it for half the prevailing prices. Hartford subsequently applied the same mass distribution principles to other foods, and public acceptance made it possible to open additional stores, thus starting America's first chain store company.

A later major step in the company's growth was the advent of the "economy stores" through which consumers demonstrated their desire to get more food for their food dollar by dispensing with credit and delivery expenses. Most significant recent trend has been the growth of the super market which, as developed by A & P, brings food to consumers at the lowest "markup" ever achieved in the retail grocery industry, he said.

"The larger turnover inherent to supermarket operation, coupled with self-service, means that the company can operate on a still narrower margin, passing the resultant savings on to both producers and consumers," Mr. Mullen explained. He pointed to the fact that his company's customers this year will save over $50,000,000 on their food as compared to the lowest prices which could have been charged on the basis of operating costs five years ago. Similarly, growers and shippers marketing fresh fruits and vegetables through A & P stores now get a 3 per cent greater share of the consumer's dollar than they did only four years ago.

The feasibility of increasing the use of healthful foods in line with the government drive to raise dietary standards is shown by success of the company's own drive this year to encourage consumption of fresh fruits and vegetables. During a 10-week period, he said, its purchases totaled 33,203 carloads, compared with 27,574 carloads bought in the same period last year, a gain of 20.4 per cent.

Such efforts are only a start, however, for the Department of Agriculture has found that some 45,000,000 people live below "the safety line of diet," he said. "The health and strength of the nation can only be guaranteed when all those people have a proper diet," the official declared, "a guarantee which can be made only when all food distributors raise their standards of efficiency and eliminate all unnecessary steps and costs in the nation's marketing system."

Hulmeville P. T. A. Adopts Welfare As Term Project

HULMEVILLE, Oct. 16—A detailed account of the sessions of the seventh biennial conference, Southeastern District of Pennsylvania Congress of Parents and Teachers, was given last evening by Mrs. Rex Hunter, of Torresdale, at the meeting of Hulmeville-Middletown P. T. A. The session was held in the school house, with Mrs. Hunter being called upon by the president, Mrs. Joseph Mucklow. She told of the numerous sessions held in Easton, and gave highlights of some addresses.

As a project for the year the organization decided upon welfare and social hygiene. Some discussion occurred as to financial aid for dental work.

The secretary having resigned, Miss Dorothy Thuss was elected to this post. Tellers for the election were Mrs. Walter Haas and Mr. Alcorn.

Minutes were read by Miss Margaret Perry; with treasurer's report being given by Samuel Brehaut.

Principal Lynn Shatzer reported on quantities of surplus food for the pupils, received from the government supply. The P. T. A. agreed to purchase crackers to be served at noon-times with soup, a quantity of dehydrated soup being received with the other surplus foods.

A new member of the faculty, Miss Janet MacNair, was introduced by the principal.

Committee chairmen to serve during the term were named by the president as follows: Publicity, Miss Perry; ways and means, N. Moyer; refreshments, Mrs. Robert Brien, Sr.; membership, Mrs. John Corrigan; welfare, Miss Mary Catucci; program, Mrs. Rex Hunter.

followers brought out were that the largest attendance at one world series game was 68,540, on October 1st, this year, when Brooklyn played New York Yankees. The total receipts at that game were $265,396. This crowd was 2,000 more than that which witnessed the Giants-Yankees game in 1936, when $240,591 totalled the receipts. The smallest attendance at one game was on October 14, 1908, Landreth informed, when Chicago Cubs and Tigers met at Detroit, there being but 6,210 present. "But the smallest receipts for any one game was on October 12, 1905, when the Giants played the Athletics in Philadelphia, and took in only $8,348," he added.

Mr. Landreth told of the largest attendance for a series, largest and smallest players pool; the smallest amounts winning and losing players ever received, etc. He added that each winning player this year on the Yankees team received $5,917, and each of the losing players on the Dodgers team received $4,408.

"The start of the world series was in 1903, between Pittsburgh Nationals and the Boston Americans," was more information given. "It has been played each Fall ever since, with the exception of 1904 when Mr. Bruch, president of the New York Giants, would not permit his team to play the Philadelphia Athletics. . . . The American League has won 24 times to the Nationals' 14; and while many umpires have officiated, William J. Klam, dean of the National League, has taken part in 18 of the series."

Mr. Landreth also told that "The most players participating in one game were in the Giants' line-up in 1936, when 18 men appeared. Many times, however, only nine men have taken part in the contest, which happened four times in this last series. . . . Babe Ruth played in the most world series, seven."

"There has never been a no-hit game, but Ed Reulbach, of the Chicago Nationals, only gave the Chicago Americans one hit on October 10th, 1906."

Thomas Coles presided during the business meeting. Entertainment was arranged by Charles I. Bowen and his committee. A buffet lunch was served.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

With all the thundering drama of the great Northwest, "Wild Geese Calling," comes to the screen of the Grand Theatre today.

Henry Fonda, as the two fisted lumberjack, and Joan Bennett, as the dance hall queen, have the leading roles in the story of two people togetherness fighting the fury of a great primitive country.

This new 20th Century-Fox film follows the drifting progress of lumberjack Fonda, who is gripped by wanderlust. Searching for his friend, Warren William, he meets and marries Joan Bennett, a dancer in a tough waterfront saloon.

Their adventures enroute to Alaska are heightened by the realization that Joan and Warren are former sweethearts. Amid the wilds of Alaska, "Wild Geese Calling" builds swiftly to its smashing climax.

BRISTOL THEATRE

Crammed with audience entertainment values, the new service comedy, "Bud Abbott and Lou Costello and Dick Powell 'In the Navy'", which opened yesterday at the Bristol Theatre, will probably go down in cinematic history as one of the laugh hits of this generation. Highlighted by brilliant performances and adorned with new songs, the offering promises to surpass in box office returns even the record-breaking figures piled up by "Buck Privates."

Heading the big cast playing in support of the three stars are the Andrews

RITZ THEATRE

With most of the world powers racing for air supremacy today, Paramount's stirring air epic, "Power Drive," which opened at the Ritz Theatre last night, comes as timely and thrilling film fare which everybody should see.

Anne Shirley appears in "West Point Widow."

Delicious Meals On Economy Scale

The need for economy is no handicap to the clever homemaker when it comes to serving good meals. She knows that some of the most delicious meals can be served at low cost when less demanded cuts of meat, rich in flavor and in food value but requiring a little longer time to cook, are used as the basis.

One of these cuts is brisket of beef. This is usually corned, but it is also good fresh. It's a great favorite in restaurants which specialize in good, hearty food. It can be cooked just as successfully at home. Serve it with a tasty horseradish sauce.

Beef Brisket with Horseradish Sauce. Select a three or four-pound piece of fresh beef brisket. Cover with hot water. Season with salt and pepper. Cook at a simmering temperature three to four hours or until tender.

Horseradish Sauce

1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup milk
½ cup horseradish

Cabbage-Filled Peppers

6 sweet red peppers
½ head cabbage
½ tablespoon salt
2 cups vinegar

1 tablespoon whole yellow mustard seed

Remove stems and cut off the tops of the peppers and remove the seeds without breaking the shells. Cut cabbage fine as in slaw, and add to it the salt and mustard seeds. Mix thoroughly and place in peppers, pressing it in tightly. Place tops on pepper cases and fasten them down with toothpicks. Place them upright in stone jar and cover with vinegar. Place cover over jar and put away in cool place until ready to use. They may be kept for several months before using.

VAN LENTEN STARTS AGAINST TEMPLE

By Jack Gill

Wilbur Van Lenten, who played tackle at Bristol High School under Steve Juenger, will receive a starting assignment against Temple University this Saturday when Penn State invades the City Line Stadium. Bob Wallace, a grid great while at Morrisville, a golden era of Yeager's days at Reitzel, et al., may also start as a reserve Penn State.

VanLenten has come to college play and saw action last season when State nearly went through an unbeaten season. Although he didn't get veteran Bob Higgins' starting nod in the opener against Colgate, VanLenten started last week in the Bucknell fuss. He fell on a punt on the 44 yard line that led to a Nittany Lion six-pointer. Later he placed booted an extra point.

Temple is as good as any small college in the East. State isn't as adept as it was during 1940. As a result, the Owls are favored to avenge last fall's stinging defeat. In the game last year, Lower Bucks County witnessed a hot individual backfield duel between Craig White, of State, and Jim Yeager, of Temple. Since then White has graduated and Yeager quit school. Both boys are Morrisville residents.

This year a hot scrap is anticipated between Pepper Petrella, of Penn

State, and Temple's handy Andy Tomasic. To the victor will go the spoils!

STRIKES AND SPARES

Hello, folks! Here's just a few bits of bowling gossip as gathered at the Bristol Recreation Center, where every night the eight alleys are jammed with keggers, both old and young, males and females. . . . So great has been the response to the tenpin game this season that two more alleys are being installed by the management. . . . Do you know that the various leagues have the alleys so occupied that it is impossible to bowl an independent game any night? . . . In the leagues are a total of 400 bowlers—additional circuits for this season include: Fleetwings Seabird League, Fleetwings Workers' League, and Fleetwings Ladies' League. . . . We've heard of brothers forming basketball teams in different sections of the country, but in Bristol we have White, of State, and Jim Yeager, of Temple. Since then White has graduated and Yeager quit school. Both boys are Morrisville residents.

This year a hot scrap is anticipated between Pepper Petrella, of Penn for the Diamond Junior is tops for the infant season. . . . Herman Encke, a charter member of the Bristol Bowling Association won a Philadelphia Record medal with scores of 223, 203, 203, the first to come to Bristol this season—congratulations, Herman! . . . Word has been passed on that Jack Wichser has entered a Bristol Elks team in the Pennsylvania Elks League. . . . The first 1,000 game of the season was rolled by the Rohm & Haas team last Monday night—the last four men struck out to beat out the Ford V-8 quintet. . . . The teams are starting to go in for colors now—Joe Diamanti's Diamond club appeared on Wednesday night with solid green shirts with white ties and white lettering—not to be outdone, Paul Voltz had his Voltz Texaco bunch show up with red shirts and white lettering—in the Ladies League, the Clott girls started something by appearing in their new slack uniforms; however, one of the girls was disappointed; her uniform did not fit. . . . The boys are thinking of changing the name of Bailey's 440 to Bailey's 393; and Joe Barton did not suggest this! . . . Well, so long, folks, until next week.

HOCKEY GAME CALLED OFF

The scheduled hockey game between the girls of Bensalem and Buckingham schools was called off, yesterday, when Buckingham failed to put in an appearance.

Bar Member in Suit Claims Poles Cut Property Value

Snipes testified were the decrease in rentals and "the ugliest telephone poles I ever saw."

Mrs. Jane Moon Snipes, wife of the attorney and one of the plaintiffs, and owner with her husband, as tenants by the entirety since 1930, testified the telephone poles were not only very unsightly but that they were dangerous and in the way for cars wishing to drive up in front of the restaurant and stores.

Edward R. Moon, Philadelphia broker, who owns two properties, one a 180-acre farm and the other a 240-acre farm, near the Snipes place, testified a fair market value before the planting of the poles and stringing of cable was $1,000 an acre or $35,000 for both tracts. He further added that he believes it has been depreciated to the extent of $17,500. "The poles are ugly, the sagging cable is unsightly, and neon-signs had to be removed," said Mr. Moon, who also added that because of the poles it is necessary for a motorist to make an almost right angle in turning off the highway to drive up in front of the restaurant, night club and other stands. The poles also interfered with 15 gasoline pumps and a garage.

R. H. Busby, Morrisville, testified the two tracts of land were worth about $35,000 before the poles were there and are worth about $20,000 now. Israel Bray, Fallsington, testified that the property was worth $35,000 before and about $21,000 now.

D. J. Steene, Falls township, who testified the properties were worth about $35,000 before the poles and wires were there, said it has been damaged to the extent of about one-third or between $500 and $600 per acre less, and placed the present value ranging from $10,000 to $15,000 or $18,000.

Harry Watson, who said he has lived in Falls township 83 years, testified he resides within a half mile of the Snipes property.

Mr. Watson, a contractor and builder, said a fair market value before the planting of the poles was $33,000. A fair market value after the planting was $19,000.

George Watson, Morrisville carpenter, testified the value before was about $35,000. After the planting of the poles, in 1938, Mr. Watson, a former constable, said it was worth about $20,000.

William U. Hohweiler, Morrisville, said that in his opinion the market value before was $36,000 and afterwards $21,000.

Because the witness did not have a detailed knowledge of real estate values in that vicinity, Minor J. Hill, Bristol real estate and insurance broker, was not permitted to submit an estimate of the damage done to the Snipes property, near Morrisville.

The testimony of A. Russell Burton, Bristol realtor, revealed that before the poles were there a fair market value in his opinion, was $30,000 and afterwards $16,000.

"The poles look to be about four feet apart," remarked Mr. Burton.

"How fast do you drive by that place?" snapped counsel for the defendant.

"Fifty miles an hour," said the witness.

The poles are about 175 or 200 feet apart, it was testified earlier in the trial.

"I list the value of the ground an acre, unimproved, at $200 or $7200," said Mr. Burton.

A jury on Monday went to Falls Township and viewed the premises in the case of Edgar T. Snipes and Jane Moon Snipes versus the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania.

Members of the jury were Ida Benn, Ivyland; James Robinson, Perkaskie; John A. Meyer, Bristol, R. D.; Elmer Nice, Shelly; Ida P. Fisher, Rushland; Mame Earinger, Perkaskie; Charles K. Ewers, Lahaska; Elsie Reed, Bristol, R. D. 1; Elma Rita Hussey, Bristol;

Robert A. Benner, Perkaskie; Frank K. Chestnut, Doylestown.

A jury was drawn in the case of Doylestown Agricultural Company versus Dietrich Froeblich in an appeal from a Justice of the Peace.

The cases listed for trial are as follows:

Nicholas Pavano versus James E. Harris, an appeal from J. P.

Edward Zentz, trading as Edward's Turkey Farm versus William S. Savage, an action in assumpsit.

Percy D. Earll versus John C. Wichser, in an action in trespass.

Doylestown Agricultural Co. versus Edward Weisser, in an appeal from J. of P.

John Schulberger, Jr. versus Clarence B. Wolfinger and Frank Flick, in an action in trespass.

Russell C. Trumbore versus Robert Cissel, in an action in trespass.

With only eight of the 33 cases listed for trial, the October term of Civil and Equity Court got underway Monday when President Judge Hiram H. Keller and Judge Calvin S. Boyer were on the bench.

Twenty-five cases were continued or settled.
